July 3, 2014

The Lava Beds National Monument trails have reopened by direction of the park superintendent after being closed due to danger from the Caldwell Fire. The fire has been contained and no longer presents an undue risk to visitors. Please be alert should conditions change, or for short duration local trail closures. Thank you for your patience during the recent closures.

All Lava Beds National Monument trails, facilities and campground are now open!

Sincerely,

Mike Reynolds Superintendent
